The Linda Leube Memorial Concert Piano in Recital

Internationally recognized concert pianist and Steinway Artist Gayle Martin will perform the inaugural recital on the Linda Leube Memorial Concert Piano. Her program will include the Brazilian Cycle of Heitor Villa-Lobos, Beethoven's famous Moonlight Sonata, and Schumann's Widmung, transcribed for the piano by Liszt. She will be joined by Ted Barr for Franz Schubert's beloved Fantasy in F Minor (for four hands). Gayle and Ted are excited to be sharing this inaugural piano recital with our First Church family.

GAYLE MARTIN achieved international prominence as sole American laureate of the sixth International Tchaikovsky Piano Competition in Moscow—the third American woman ever to reach the finals. A native Texan, she was one of the last students of the famous pedagogue, Mme. Rosina Lhevinne at the Juilliard School. Gayle has presented solo recitals and performed as concerto soloist with orchestras around the world. Her latest CD recording, To Keep the Dark Away, has received rave reviews and is available on Amazon.com.

"This is an infinitely rewarding disc that demands repeated listening to get the most out of it." (Fanfare Magazine)

Welcome New Member: Christopher Torrance

Uniting with the church last month is Christopher Torrance, a native of Philadelphia. He lived in the Poconos region—Stroudsburg, Hazleton, Scranton—for several years and has been a construction worker and a security guard in the city. He would like folks to know that this church saved his life when he was at a particular low point. Passing the church, he said the doors were open "and something kept shoving me in." Welcome, Christopher!

About Christian Education

In an article entitled "From the Suburbs to the City: A Youth Minister Finds His Calling in Germantown," FPCG's Director of Christian Education Christian Heyer-Rivera is featured in a profile on the web site Germantown Beat: A News Site for Philadelphia's Historic Germantown Neighborhood. While an electronic notice was sent to members and friends of the church concerning the article, those who may have missed it can view it at <http://wp.lasalle.edu/gb/>.

On Palm Sunday, April 9, after weeks of confirmation classes, five young people—Aidan McCord-Amasis, Maya Clever, Madison Lundy, Zaria Cuffee, and Jasmine Greene—stood before the congregation and read their statements of faith as they had earlier at a Session meeting. You will find those statements throughout this issue of Windows.

The Pastor's Paragraphs

Dear Friends of FPC in Germantown

Somehow it has stayed in my memory. A seminary professor, decades ago, said that one aspect of spiritual maturity is the capacity to celebrate the good that exists in the midst of the partial and the imperfect. Opportunity to recall that statement came last week as I assisted my mother move from her beloved home into an assisted living facility. A twenty-year struggle with macular degeneration has limited Mom's vision. The pain of bursitis has been an unwelcome companion for months. These challenges could easily have produced a negative and depressed feeling. Yet it wasn't to be found. Mom found joys worthy of celebration in many aspects of her new surroundings. Her joy taught another life lesson to her children and grands: every day has its own good if we have a will to see it.

Each phase of our lives brings many challenges. It is challenging to be young and navigate the educational system, as is being old enough to be caring for the young and bone weary from meeting a challenging routine that will be recycled tomorrow, and the day after. It is challenging to be half way along a career path and struggle to bring fresh energy and creativity in to tasks that seem mundane and repetitive. Every day brings challenges, but also comes with joy, satisfaction, and meaning. Lord, give us the vision to celebrate every day that you grant us upon this earth.

*Your fellow servant,
Randy Bremer, Interim Pastor*

Statement Of Faith: AIDAN MCCORD-AMASIS

I'm Aidan and I was born and raised as a Christian as well as most of my family. I was baptized as a child in Summit Presbyterian with my younger brother at the age of five. My parents joined this church around two years ago and we've been coming ever since. Through my life ever since I was young, I have been to many churches, but this church has made me and my family feel at home with the hospitality from the congregation. I'm certainly comfortable with the members of this church and am willing to grow with my fellow Christians. As a follower of the Christian faith, I believe that God is the almighty creator, the never-ending lover. He is my guide, and will be there for me and my loved ones.

I believe Jesus Christ is the Savior and Lord. He is the one who died for our sins and our mistakes in life, who set us free from sin to lead us down the right path, the Prince of Peace, the Son of God, the Messiah and the Redeemer. The Holy Spirit is the person of God I feel, the one supporting me, the presence of God, the spirit and the comforter. The church is to cure the sick, feed the hungry, help the poor and spread God's word. To be confirmed is to accept God into your life completely, to engage yourself in the church and to become a true follower by faith. The required steps to become a fully active member of the church is to participate and study more. To take part in community projects to help others, to go to youth group and even help in the nursery. I believe that as a Christian and as a member of this church I should love everyone in the congregation, no matter what age or ethnicity. I should value everyone's opinions, be friendly, and respect my elders along with my peers as well as respect the church's rules. I am ready to help spread the word of God through the church as well as believe and share the word of the Lord.

I would like to take the time to thank God for my wonderful family, especially my parents for pushing me so hard as well as my friends and elders who also gave me a huge helping hand while discussing my faith. I would like to thank the congregation for accepting me and my family into this church to help us all worship the Lord together.

EASTER FESTIVAL THANKS

The Christian Education Committee would like to thank God and all the willing volunteers who made this year's Easter Festival on Saturday, April 15, such a huge success. From the Congregational Development and Fellowship Committee's cooking and serving the food, to the many members taking pictures, helping lead fun- and faith-filled crafts at the various tables, hiding and directing our annual egg hunt, leading music from our Children's Choir and participants in worship, so many hands were willing and able to help bless our community, our families and so many children! We pray the joy of the Festival, the proclamation of Jesus Christ risen from the dead, and the abiding presence of the risen Christ through the Holy Spirit produce much fruit in the lives of all those who participated and volunteered! To God be all glory!

Rev. Dr. Jade King Bass

Jade Bass Receives Doctor of Ministry Degree

The Reverend Jade King Bass is now the Reverend Dr. Jade King Bass. This spring, she received the degree of Doctor of Ministry from the Lutheran Theological Seminary in Mt. Airy.

After a career in education—Jade was a science teacher for 25 years and an administrator, an assistant high school principal, for six years—she was called to the ministry in the Presbyterian Church (USA) and was ordained as a Teaching Elder. She is now a Member at Large of the Presbytery of Philadelphia and most recently served as Temporary Supply at the Mt. Airy Presbyterian Church.

As Dr. Bass has affirmed: I love the Lord, my family and my friends and the people of God. For me, ordination was about answering the call of God to be His servant. I have learned to have perseverance through all of life's personal trials and to strive for what God's will is for my life. My desire in life is to please, worship, glorify God and enjoy Him forever.

Jade is married to Aaron C. Bass, Jr., a member of our congregation, and they are the parents of five: Naja, Clyde, Aaron III, Jarod and Sherita.

Congratulations, Dr. Bass!

Statement Of Faith: MAYA CLEVER

Hello. I am Maya Clever. My grandfather, my mother, and I have been at this church for about six years. I have been involved in church for all my life and was baptized in an Episcopal church which is the first step in which God called me. I think very highly of Jesus. I may not pray every night, but one thing I know for sure is that he is definitely my Savior. He suffered for our sins so our sins wouldn't separate us from God. He is also my Lord I know this because he is ruler of all we see before us. He may not physically be with us but he is within us. I was confirmed at the beginning of my life when I was first baptized at Calvary which is the name of my previous church. Before, it was Jesus calling me and claiming me as his own. Now it is just me confirming that I am one of his own. I am really excited to become an active member because it not only makes my bond with Jesus stronger but it joins myself to this church and also it is as if I am growing up and learning how my strengths can help others. I can now join new groups within the church as well. In the past I have seen God work through prayer. I have prayed many times for Jesus to help me with a test that I was sure to fail or just a difficult time in my life. One big moment was when my grandmother was in the hospital last year for a back injury. I prayed that she would get better and she is. She sometimes has pains in her back but mostly she has been healed. I think I can bring some of my talents and interests in to the church in two ways. One is through knowledge. I am not an expert about everything in the Bible but I have been exposed to many different faiths and beliefs. I go to a Presbyterian church, was baptized in an Episcopal church, previously was in a Catholic school, some people in my current school are Jewish, and I have Muslim neighbors. So you could say I have picked up a couple things. These diverse points of view could help in the impact of sharing the Gospel to my community.

Another way is that some people know that I can be pretty cheerful at times which could help with children and I also can be pretty patient. Lastly, I would like to thank my grandfather and mother for always making Jesus and God a part of my life and for the people who taught me about his great ways. Thank you.

Statement Of Faith: ZARIA CUFFEE

My name is Zaria Cuffee. I was born and raised right here at First Pres. My mother had me baptized here as a baby. My mother and grandmother became members of this church years ago. Jesus being my Savior means I don't have to worry about my sins overwhelming me because I know that Jesus died for my sins and that our God is a forgiving God. Jesus is my Lord because I know that he is the one true God and I will never put anything above him. I know God hears and answers prayers and is always with me. A time I really understood this was when my mother was deployed to Afghanistan. I prayed to Him that He would bring my mother home safe and we all know how that turned out. I'm grateful that my Mother had me baptized as a child to show that Jesus accepts me in my church community. Now it's time for me to accept Jesus as my Lord and Savior with the support of my church community. I am ready to take a more active role in helping with the youth of this church. I will share my ability to work with the youth in the Nursery and Sunday School. Helping others grow in their faith is really important to me. I want to thank God that he gave me a loving mother, grandmother and other close relatives that encourage my faith in Jesus Christ. I also want to thank (and this is not in any particular order) the Littles, the Lundys, the Heyer-Riveras, the Overtons and Christopher Scott, Jr., for being there when I needed them the most.

PNC UPDATE: THE LORDSHIP OF JESUS CHRIST

Largely because of the church's Season of Easter, the progress of the Pastor Nominating Committee has slowed somewhat. All of the applicants who are in active ministry have been involved in the activities of their churches.

Helpful in the search has been the reading and studying of Dean E. Foose's Searching for a Pastor the Presbyterian Way with the subtitle of "A Roadmap for Pastor Nominating Committees." Foose, after more than 20 years in urban ministry, is the Director of Alumni Relations and Placement Emeritus at Princeton Theological Seminary. On pages 12 and 13 of his book, the writer advises the committee that "At the beginning of your search process, recognize the biblical and theological foundation for our status as people of God. We are a product of God's persistent work of calling and shaping a faithful people. Our Presbyterian system of government calls for continuity with and faithfulness to the heritage that lies behind the contemporary church. It calls equally for openness and faithfulness to the renewing activity of the God of history.

"Presbyterians have a firm theological foundation, and we have written it into our Form of Government. We believe 'God has put all things under the Lordship of Jesus Christ and has made Christ Head of the Church, which is his body. Christ calls the church into being, giving it all that is necessary for its mission to the world, for its building up, and for its service to God. Christ is present with the church in both Spirit and Word. It belongs to Christ as he wills, exercising his authority by the ministry of women and men for the establishment and extension of his Kingdom'"

Your Pastor Nominating Committee faithfully embraces these beliefs and strives hard to uphold them as we search for our next pastor.

Statement Of Faith: JASMINE GREENE

My name is Jasmine Greene and I've been at First Presbyterian Church for ten years now. My mom Sara Greene came here when her neighbor invited her and my Aunt Jenn when she was about five years old. Then she got involved in youth group and the confirmation class until where she got confirmed. In 2015, my brother LJ Greene became a confirmed member. I will be the third generation member here at First Presbyterian Church in Germantown. believe what it says in the Apostle's Creed... "I believe in God. I believe that Jesus is God's only son. I believe in the Holy Spirit, the forgiveness of sins, the resurrection of the body and the life everlasting." Being a confirmed and active member means to me that I may help teach the younger children with arts and crafts. It also means that I would keep learning and studying the Bible. I will keep asking questions and continue to learn what it means to be a Christian as I grow.

I would like to thank my mom Sara Greene, my brother LJ, my grandmother Lois and her husband Charles Bethea and the Heyer-Riveras, especially Mrs. Sheila and my educator Christian.

SCHOLARSHIPS AVAILABLE

Statement Of Faith: MADISON LUNDY

My name is Madison Lundy, and I am 12 years old, turning 13 on May 27. I love to dance and I love music and money. I also love food and having fun. I especially love this church and Jesus. I was baptized when I was an infant at this church and when my mom was pregnant with me she had the baby shower here.

I believe in Jesus and that he is my Lord and Savior and I believe that God has called me to become a fully active member of this church. I believe that Jesus is God in the flesh. I also believe that God is real and that he is trying to guide me to the right path so that I can be successful in the many aspects in life. I believe that Jesus died for my sins on the cross and my faith in his love for me is a very strong bond that cannot be broken.

I am very happy because I finally can become an active member of this church. I am excited to be able to voice my opinion to the committees, pastors, deacons, and session. I have always wanted to become a deacon and I would like to establish junior deacons for people that are younger than eighteen. I want to share all of my gifts and talents with everyone.

I want to thank a few people but I am not trying to put these people in an order from greatest to least, this is just how I wrote it. I would like to thank my mom, Lechelle Garnett, for just being the best mom in the world and for always supporting me no matter what the situation is and I love you. I would like to thank my grandma, Mary Lundy, for always putting up with me even if I gave her an extremely hard time and I love you. I would like to thank my aunt, Contina Lundy, for always having my back and for guiding me down the right path to success. Also, for helping me get through the worst things in life and I love you. I would like to thank my dad, Frank Lundy II, for loving and caring for and about me and I really appreciate it and I love you. I would like to thank my grandpa, Frank Lundy, for always looking out for me and I love you. I have saved the best for last, I would like to thank my little sister, Kelsi Lundy because she is just an amazing sister. I know that it may seem as though I don't appreciate her but, I couldn't ask for a better sister and I love you. I LOVE EVERYONE!!!

Lois VanEerden: Educator Personified

Lois Vaneerden

Even after 55 active and cherished years in the First Presbyterian Church in Germantown, Lois VanEerden is still at it—as coordinator in half a dozen sites of the Reading Buddies Program, including the one at Interfaith House across from the church. The others are First Presbyterian in Philadelphia, the Mary Field Presbyterian, Germantown Home, Cathedral Village, and KleinLife, a senior center in the Northeast.

Lois' career in education has conditioned her well for working with the nearly 200 Philadelphia school children who are tutored by a comparable number of volunteers at the churches and retirement communities. A graduate of Germantown High School, she has a B. A. in Elementary Education from Juniata College and a M. A. in Education from Temple University. She has taught special education in the Norristown area and kindergarten, first and second grades in the Cheltenham School District. After 11 years, though, she said, "I saw myself going up the same set of stairs for the rest of my life, and I didn't want to do it." Her subsequent soul-searching led to interviews for teaching jobs abroad, and in the process she was offered a principal's position in Ghana and a teaching job in Russia. But the year was 1967, a time of great international unrest, and "they [the Russians] were still throwing tomatoes at Americans."

"I saw myself going up the same set of stairs for the rest of my life, and I didn't want to do it."

Yet she did get abroad in her next position, one she held for 26 years, that of educational consultant primarily in the field of reading for Scott Foresman, the book publishing company. She was sent "with her book bag" to the Netherlands, the country in which her father was born, and to Iceland, Newfoundland, Bermuda, the Azores, among other places. "I never would have been written up in my high school yearbooks as one who would be giving presentations," Lois said, but that was a major part of her job of the editing, developing and servicing of reading materials. The former teacher's traveling later was confined to the southeastern Pennsylvania and New Jersey territory with occasional forays into Washington D. C. and Maryland. As she looked back on her career, she said that "working with teachers and helping them use the materials they had purchased was like going to college all over again."

After all that traveling, the book lady always returned home to Germantown. Her family had moved here from the Logan section of the city when Lois was ten years old, and after becoming quite familiar with all the Presbyterian churches in the area, including the United Presbyterian Church, and in her teen-age years, the Market Square Church, she came to First in 1962. She was invited here by a group of young working and professional singles, including Bette Young, then Kleiser. In addition to playing volleyball on Tuesday nights, the women and men met on Sunday evenings to discuss the controversial social and cultural changes of the 1960s. "Some of the members of the church were not at all aware of what was happening and the changes around them," said Lois. But the group with whom she was so closely associated made a profound impact on her life. Their reading and discussing The Me Nobody Knows: Children's Voices from the Ghetto, edited by Stephen M. Joseph, led to their outreach to the John Wister Elementary School on Brighthurst Street where they labored hard to build the kinds of relationships with the children that expanded their horizons in ways that might change their lives.

At the church, it was not long before Ms. VanEerden was teaching Sunday school: the middlers of third and fourth grades and then the kindergarten class. It was a time the church had two services and Sunday school was held in between. Sundays for Lois was a 9:00 am-12:30 pm stretch. When she united with the church in 1964, Rev. Reginald Thomas was the pastor; in 1975 when the Rev. Aaron Gast was minister, she became a deacon. In 1983, when she was the third woman in the history of the church to serve as a trustee, the Rev. Scottie Griffin was in the pulpit. And in 1992, with the Rev. Donald Simpson as pastor, she was ordained an elder. Years later, during the ministry of the Rev. Nancy Muth, Lois VanEerden served again as a deacon. Most recently, she has been a member of the bell choir.

In another Presbyterian venue, the Presbyterian Homes Auxiliary, of which she was a member, she met Patricia P. Quigg, the founder and director of Reading Buddies, and in 2000, the program, then at 18 sites, became Lois's "passion" as she agreed to be an assistant to Ms. Quigg. "I love being able to use my background in so many positive ways in meeting the adults I've come to treasure as they encourage and support the children," said Lois. "Reading Buddies has changed my life."

In her spare time—Lois chuckled at the term—the long-time educator loves quilting because of "the colors and geometric patterns I work with." Now living in Lansdale, she still travels extensively to visit her 13 nieces and nephews all in different states and countries. But Lois VanEerden's chief excursions these days are to the Reading Buddies' locations and to her cherished church on Cheltenham Avenue in Germantown.

EASTER MUSIC IN GERMANTOWN

From these voices and these instruments came the joyous sounds of Easter music in our sanctuary on Easter: Guilmont's "Communion" and "Grand Triumphal Chorus"; Handel's "I Know that my Redeemer Liveth" (from Messiah); Beethoven's "Hallelujah" (from the Mount of Olives); "Hallelujah" (from Messiah); and Widor's "Tocatta in F Major."

Flanking the chancel choir in the front row are (left) F. Anthony Thurman, Director of Music and organist, and (right) Zubin Hathi, timpanist and percussionist; (far right) Charlotte Olson, trumpeter. Added to this music were the voices of the congregation raised in the hymns, "Jesus Christ is Risen Today," "How Great Thou Art" and "Lift High the Cross."

The First Presbyterian Church in Germantown

The mission of the First Presbyterian Church in Germantown is to reflect the loving presence of Christ in Germantown as we serve others faithfully, worship God joyfully, and share life together in a diverse and generous community.
